My Uncle Tim was fun to be around and it was constant laughter and good times. He was an avid wrestling fan and my fondest childhood memories was me and my younger brother being over his house watching events such as WrestleMania and the Royal Rumble with him. He was a hard worker and made sure that his family was taken care of no matter how tired, sick, or hurt he was...a model I try to follow myself as I raise my kids and take care of my family. No matter what, the one person I could count on to "clown around" with was my Uncle Tim and I will miss him deeply.

Tim was my Irish twin. Being eleven months apart I always looked forward to turning the same age if only for a little while. Saturday mornings growing up was filled with cartoons and laughter. Tom chasing Jerry, SoulTrain, love peace and soul. Sanford and Son, you big dummy are some of the best memories and phrases you sometimes would say that makes me laugh. Rest well big brother my forever Irish twin. ❤️ ❤️ ❤️ ❤️
